SAY THIS...

Eat that for me.
If you do not eat one more bite, I will be mad.

This is kiwi fruit; it's sweet like a strawberry.
These radishes are very crunchy!

Phrases like these teach your child to eat for your approval and love. This can lead your child to have unhealthy behaviors, attitudes, and beliefs about food and about themselves.

Phrases like these help to point out the sensory qualities of food. They encourage your child to try new foods.

SAY THIS...

You're such a big girl; you finished all your peas.
Jenny, look at your sister. She ate all of her bananas.
You have to take one more bite before you leave the table.

Is your stomach telling you that you're full?
Is your stomach still making its hungry growling noise?
Has your tummy had enough?

Phrases like these teach your child to ignore fullness. It is better for kids to stop eating when full or satisfied than when all of the food has been eaten.

Phrases like these help your child to recognize when he or she is full. This can prevent overeating.

AVOID THIS..

SAY THIS...

See, that didn't taste so bad, did it?

Do you like that?
Which one is your favorite?
Everybody likes different foods, don't they?

This implies to your child that he or she was wrong to refuse the food. This can lead to unhealthy attitudes about food or self.

Phrases like these make your child feel like he or she is making the choices. It also shifts the focus toward the taste of food rather than who was right.

AVOID THIS...

SAY THIS...

No dessert until you eat your vegetables.
Stop crying and I will give you a cookie.

We can try these vegetables again another time.
Next time would you like to try them raw instead of cooked?
I am sorry you are sad. Come here and let me give you a big hug.

Offering some foods, like dessert, in reward for finishing others, like vegetables, makes some foods seem better than others. Getting a food treat when upset teaches your child to eat to feel better. This can lead to overeating.

Reward your child with attention and kind words. Comfort him or her with hugs and talks. Show love by spending time and having fun together.
